MANIFEST

Welcome to the Manifest; a weekly summary that cares more about brevity than grammar, and what is about to or could happen in Seaside than what did or didn't. Contributions to future editions are welcome at cmalin@ci.seaside.ca.us prior to noon on Fridays.

The Week That Was

- Thank You Diana – Deputy City Manager Diana Ingersoll retired, after 34 years of service to Seaside. Thirty four years is an extraordinary length of service to one community. Her contributions are many, and lasting. Thank you, and best wishes.
- Thank You, SPD – Seaside Police did an excellent job in supporting the Black Lives Matter rally. Helpful, professional and supportive; their interaction with the rally attendees was good to see, and they were welcomed by rally attendees as community partners near the end of the rally.
- Thank You, Rally Goers – For your passion, peaceable assembly and bringing no shortage of American flags along. As Constitutional Amendments go, that first one ranks right up there.
- Thank You, Mayor Rubio – For offering some reflections (attached) on recent events.
- Thank You, Melissa and Shannon – For compiling the police and fire activity logs of the week (attached). Woman attacked with burrito, declined to press charges? Usually, burrito attacks are more of the Trojan Horse variety. Think about it (or not).
- Thank You Roberta – For assembling a draft qualifications and attributes narrative as a starting point for the upcoming recruitment. If you're reading this, feel free to send any revision suggestions to HR Director Greathouse or me. I note, for example, that there's no specific reference regarding training, experience and the demonstration of mastery in the de-escalation of food fights.
- Thank You, Kurt – Kurt Overmeyer began his tenure as Economic Development Program Manager on Monday. By the end of the week, we had enough discussions of structural hurdles to economic development that ... we may be on to something. As someone not new to sustainable, progressive approaches to economic development but new(ish) to our happy little place on the globe, I've been wondering if I've just been missing something ...

Kurt's not new at all to the region or California economic development, but his initial investigations result in a similar perspective – that Seaside could (and will) be faring far better in economic development with some introspection on our processes, and discussion of procedural improvements at the staff and policy levels. Toward this end, we're planning a "round table" discussion of potential procedural (and / or attitudinal) improvements with current and prospective community investors. Watch for more details as they firm up in early August.

- 📄 Thank You, Daphne – For keeping tabs on the developer accounts (attached)
- 📄 Thank You, MPUSD and MC Office of Education – For both approving the master tax-sharing agreement for the golf course resort project. The agreement is making the rounds to area taxing bodies, such that when golf course property is sold for the resort project (that's not imminent, but we're working toward that in a year or so) the taxing bodies can share in the revenue.
- 📄 Thank You, Los Angeles Traffic – For reinforcing, yet again, that there's no point to traveling south of Santa Barbara. Took me five hours on Friday to simply skirt along the far eastern corner of that smog-choked hellscape on my way to Phoenix.

The Weeks Ahead

- 📄 Traffic Advisory Committee Meeting – July 19.
- 📄 The July 21 Meetings
 - Possible Future Uses of Cutino Park – Show up at 5:30, wait around for a couple closed sessions (5:50 or 6:00?) and be present to watch a presentation on possible future uses of Cutino Park as a Study Session of the City Council.
 - Drago Recognized – Drago (our K-9 dog) will be recognized on his retirement from police service.
 - Body Cams Coming – A proposed response to a Civil Grand Jury Final report on the use of body-worn cameras by police officers includes a pledge to include funding for cameras in the next annual budget.
- 📄 Pardon ~~Our~~ My Mess – Staff is working on office moves that will result in the re-establishment of the full, walk-around Avery Art Gallery. We'll definitely be completely reconfigured for City Hall's 50th birthday party in October, but August and September may be a little messy at times.

Semi-Optional Reading

The partition wall that will be part of this retro-fit came with a $36,000 labor and materials estimate. Seeing as though the worst case materials cost is a tenth of that, I'll just donate my labor to the project over the course of a few weekends.

When that's done, the Council Chamber staff table project begins.

"Makers" 7.15.15

The prison woodshop was my refuge. In creating something, I left the reality of incarceration behind. To build something - anything really - was to set aside a captive present for a liberated future. The projects weren't much; an oak-handled shiv, a plywood nightstand for the bunk, a meticulously (if not accurately) carved mahogany boomerang and other small items. Nonetheless, crafting them released me from the fixed regimen of the orphanage. Orphanage. Prison. If they come after you when you escape, there's not much difference.

We take our respites where we can find them, and I've long found mine in sawdust. The refuge became craft, and the craft became enterprise as I funded part of college by making things others couldn't while trying to retain all of my fingers. A semi-joke in the household is I should have been a high school woods teacher and varsity baseball coach. That would have been the life.

That's not a complaint. It's an admission. Why didn't I think of that thirty years ago? Because that's not the way life works.

It is the life in the wood that attracts me to it. It was an acorn. It became a tree. It stored carbon and produced oxygen. It enlivened the landscape before meeting its fate. Cleared for a development? Struck by lightning? Attacked by a foreign bug? Harvested? You often don't know, but that you're going to do something with it is the whole gambit. It is not firewood. It is not mulch. It is what you make of it. What you make of it ... that's life, in a nutshell.

Woodworkers pick their planks with the care of brides choosing their wedding dress. Too big? Too small? Too flashy? Just right? It can take the better part of a day. Johnson Creek Hardwoods in Mount Carroll, Illinois is deserving of a shout-out. They grow it, cut it and dry it onsite. It's a veritable candy store, and we came back with a beautiful slice of elm.

Colin's dorm will come with a desk, but that desk will neither have a roll of butcher paper to scribble on nor a "live edge". So we'll bring one crafted of elm that does, and store the one that came with the room for the year. In woodworking, a live edge is the edge of a plank that retains where the wood met the tree's bark. It's not square. It's not uniform. It's the living, organic edge of the tree. We found a plank with just the right curve to make you want to sit at the desk a little longer, and make that term paper a little bit better. At least, that's my hope. It will also look cool, and that's not to be dismissed.

The making of something "just so" runs deep with me, for better and for worse. A piece of furniture. An essay. A subdivision plat. A game plan. A city. Most anything that is tangible. How much of that traces back to the orphanage woodshop, where I was carving out some identity in a place where identity was obliterated on the way in, is a question with an imprecise answer. How much of it traces back to the practicality of crafting something from nothing to help pay my way through college? Again, there's no precise answer, but I'm guessing every "maker" out there has personality building blocks which compel them to create.

You can live with furniture (or anything else) built in some factory, or you can make it yourself. The former is more efficient and eliminates all the risk. The latter is more personally engaging and - done well - transforms risk into generation-spanning reward. Life in a nutshell, again. The more of your life you make, the more of your life is yours. And the more you can give to others.

Have a good weekend.

TITLE: REFLECTIONS OF MAYOR RUBIO ON RECENT EVENTS

For More Information:

Mayor Rubio

Email: rrubio@ci.seaside.ca.us

With malice toward none, with charity for all.

As President Lincoln delivered his Second Inaugural on March 4, 1865, the Civil War was winding down. Within five weeks of Lincoln's address to a few thousand standing in mud on Pennsylvania Avenue, General Lee would surrender. Within six weeks, President Lincoln would be dead. This experiment without precedent - our grand experiment - of a government of the people, by the people, for the people, would have to carry on without him.

I think of Lincoln in these difficult times, in part, because I recently had the opportunity to tour Gettysburg. It is a most sobering place. Though peaceful today, the echoes of cannon blasts and rifle fire haunt the landscape. The cries of soldiers, giving their last full measure of devotion, hallow the ground. To walk those fields, even in the still of the morning air, is to be moved to reflection on whether you have done enough to honor their sacrifice.

Whether you have done enough. Whether we have done enough.

Hundreds of thousands died, at Gettysburg and other Civil War battlefields, to resolve whether we all have the same inalienable rights set forth in our Declaration of Independence and secured in our Constitution. We do. No matter your ancestry. No matter your affiliations. No matter your race. No matter your views. This nation ... this government ... of, by and for the people exists to secure and protect those inalienable rights.

Our little paradise on the bay is nearly three thousand miles from Gettysburg. We couldn't be farther from Louisiana, Minnesota, and Dallas if we tried. But ... here in Seaside ... in the most inclusive and welcoming community on the peninsula, we need to heed the lessons of Louisiana, and Minnesota. We need to treat every citizen with respect and decency and empathy. We need to heed the lesson of Dallas; to respect the brave men and women who stand on that thin blue line for us. To hold them to the highest standard; but also to honor their service.

We need most to heed the lesson, and the legacy, of Gettysburg. That this great nation ... this grand experiment in government of the people ... can only endure as we stand together. With malice toward none. With charity, with respect, and with justice for all.

Mayor Ralph Rubio

DRAFT Chief of Police Attributes/Qualities/Qualifications

The City is seeking an energetic and seasoned leader for their new Chief of Police. He/she will be honest, fair, respectful, ethical, and possess solid character. The ideal candidate will be approachable, possess an open door policy and the ability to communicate with staff at all levels. He/she will be able to set direction for the Department, but also allow staff to do their work. The new Chief will be able to create a positive working environment where ideas and feedback are listened to, appreciated and acted upon. Candidates who are transparent, understand accountability, and support staff will be valued.

The ideal candidate will have a proven track record working with ethnically diverse cultures, experience in community policing and best practices including CALEA accreditation, possess a reputation for positive engagement of staff and stakeholders and demonstrate an array of success in community-based programs that deal with drug and gang issues.

Exceptional communication and interpersonal skills are essential for a candidate's success in this search. The ideal candidate will be an adaptive team player who works collaboratively and enthusiastically in an executive team environment, and with outside agencies. Competitive candidates should understand the hands-on nature of how smaller cities work and be able to look at issues from a city-wide and regional perspective.

It is desired that the new Chief make Seaside their home and be actively involved in the community. Someone who is outgoing, authentic and respects traditions of the community without being tethered to the past is highly desired. The ideal candidate will possess an open door policy for all community members and welcome their feedback and suggestions. Compassionate, highly professional citizen service is a top priority, and requires demonstration of patience and sensitivity to the needs of the community.

Candidates must possess ten years of municipal law enforcement experience, with at least three years at the command level, minimally at the rank of Deputy Chief or, if not at the Deputy Chief level, command responsibility for patrol staff of at least fifty uniformed personnel in an urban environment. Experience with gang-related issues and grant writing will be valued, while exemplary prior performance as Police Chief will be highly valued. A Bachelor's Degree in administration of justice or related field is required. A Master's Degree and/or demonstration of continued professional development including attendance at the FBI National Academy, Kennedy School Senior Executive Program or similar program is highly desired. Must be able to meet the minimum standards as determined by California Peace Officer Standards and Training.

The City welcomes your comments on these draft attributes.
